

CHANGES IN THE ENVIRONMENT	EFFECT
The hunting dogs that lived on the properties of free settlers to protect introduced farm animals fed on native fauna such as kangaroos.	..... ..... .....
..... ..... .....	Many Aboriginal communities were forced off their traditional homelands.
The free settlers that arrived in Australia after 1820 were very ambitious and keen to expand their wealth through farming practices.	..... ..... .....
Flocks of sheep grazed near creeks and rivers which supplied water to Indigenous communities. When sheep drank from the creeks and rivers they fouled the water with dung and eroded the riverbeds.	..... ..... .....
..... ..... .....	Many Aboriginal people became incredibly sick and died due to their lack of immunity.
Native plants were cleared to make way for introduced species of flora.	..... ..... .....
..... ..... .....	..... ..... .....
..... ..... .....	..... ..... .....